- Addresses by the President and by the Chairman of Sections and Centres; Higher steam pressures, and their application to the steam turbine, by A. H. Law and J. P. Chittenden; Recent developments in submarine cable design, by R. L. Hughes; Apparatus standards of telephonic transmission, and the technique of testing microphones and receivers, by B. S. Cohen; Attenuation of wireless waves over land, by R. H. Barfield; Problems in connection with three-phase star loads, by A. Russell; A New method of dealing with the rotor windings of the cascade motor, by F. Lund; Rotating-loop radio transmitters, and their application to direction-finding and navigation, by T. H. Gill and N. F. S. Hecht; Some Experiments on the application of the rotating-beacon transmitter to marine navigation, by R. L. Smith-Rose, and S. R. Chapman; A Theoretical discussion of various possible aerial arrangements for rotating-beacon transmitters, by R. L. Smith-Rose; Physical properties of lead cable-sheaths, by P. Dunsheath and H. A. Tunstall; Principles of relay timing in connection with automatic telephone circuits, by T. H. Turney; Effect of curved boundaries on the distribution of electrical stress round conductors, by J. D. Cockcroft; Squirrel-cage induction motors, by D. B. Hoseason; Storage batteries in relation to modern supply of electric lighting and power, by

E. C. McKinnon; Design and distribution of wireless broadcasting stations for a national service, by Capt. P. P. Eckersley; Distribution of current density in lead accumulators, by J. T. Crennell and F. M. Lea; Large electric baking ovens, by W. Ellerd-Styles; Distribution of current in a transmitting antenna, by R. M. Wilmotte; Distortion in irregularly loaded lines, by A. G. Warren; Line balances and terminal-impedances, by A. G. Warren; Method of measuring the ratio and phase angle of a current transformer, by W. I. Place; Some practical considerations in the design of automatic equipments for heavy traction substations, by H. B. Poynder; Modern electric wiring, particularly as applied to small houses, by D. S. Munro; Domestic applications of electricity, by A. J. Milne and R. H. Rawll; Rheostatic speed control of a motor working against a torque which is a function of the speed, by H. Cotton; Insulating oils for high-voltage cables, by T. N. Riley and T. R. Scott; Thermal rating of transformers, by E. T. Norris; Some practical applications of quartz resonators, by G. W. N. Cobbold and A. E. Underdown; Study of signal fading: work of the Peterborough Radio Research Station, by E. V. Appleton; A Thermionic voltmeter for measuring the peak value and the mean value of an alternating voltage of any waveform, by E. B. Moullin; The Propulsion of ships by electricity, by S. B. Jackson; Some considerations of the economies of electric power production, by W. T. Townsend; Critical study of the current rating of low-pressure ordinary-duty fusible cut-outs (E. R. A. Report), by P. D. Morgan; Theoretical investigation of the phase relations in beam systems, by R. M. Wilmotte and J. S. McPetrie; General considerations of the directivity of beam systems, by R. M. Wilmotte; Nature of the field in the neighbourhood of an antenna, by R. M. Wilmotte; Chains of resonant circuits, by E. Mallett; Analytical notes on the economics of power-factor correction, by G. F. Marsteller; New method of measuring the total power in a balanced 3-phase circuit, employing only one wattmeter, by H. M. Barlow; Economic transmission of electrical power, by E. A. Logan; Revolution in physics: the 19th Kelvin Lecture, by Sir Oliver Lodge; Electrification of the Pietermaritzburg-Glencoe section of the South African Railways, by F. Lydall; Electrical properties of galvanised steel conductors for overhead transmission lines, by E. C. Walton; Behaviour of overhead transmission lines in high winds, by E. H. Lamb; Some developments in the routine pressure-testing of high-voltage cables, by E. A. Beavis; Practice and progress in combustion of coal as applied to steam generation, by F. H. Rosencrans; Reverse-power alternating current relays for 3-phase generator and feeder protection, by G. E. Taylor; Nine-ring rotary convertor, by L. H. L. Badham; Circle diagram of the induction motor, by L. H. A. Carr; Electric ploughing, by R. Borlase Matthews

Mining Engineers (The Institution of), Cleveland House, 225, City Road, London, E.C.1 (established July 1st, 1889; Incorporated by Royal Charter, February 9th, 1915; designation of Members, M.I.Min.E.), comprising the North of England Institute of Mining and Mechanical Engineers; the Midland Counties Institution of Engineers; the Midland Institute of Mining Engineers; the North Staffordshire Institute of Mining Engineers; the South Staffordshire and Warwickshire Institute of Mining Engineers; the Mining Institute of Scotland; and the Manchester Geological and Mining Society. Papers read before any of these Institutes are published in the Transactions of the Institution of Mining Engineers. H. Eustace Mitton, M.Inst.C.E., F.S.I., President; C. McDermid, Secretary

1926:—

Transactions of the Institution of Mining Engineers. Vols. 70 and 71 (36s. each) containing papers, as follows:—

Vol. 70: Memorandum of evidence presented by the Institution before the Royal Commission on the Coal Industry (1925) on December 8 and 9, 1925; Royal Commission on the Coal Industry (1925): (1) Colliery Hours and Attendance; (2) Longwall Retreating Method of Working; The Sinking of a colliery in the East Nottinghamshire Coalfield, by H. E. Mitton; A Novel point in mineral valuation, by H. Louis; Miners' phthisis on the Witwatersrand and the control of air-borne dust, by A. E. Mavrogordato; A New form of air-compressor, by Dr. H. S. Hele-Shaw and T. E. Beecham; The Thermal efficiency of a Carnot Engine, by J. S. Haldane; Presidential address, by R. Landless; An Application of underground coal-conveying, by N. E. Webster; Presidential address: Practical research, by R. Clive; The Efficiency of flame safety-lamps, by R. V. Wheeler and D. W. Woodhead; A Review of hygrometry in mining practice (Third Report of the Midland Institute Committee on the Ventilation of Mines), by W. E. Cooke; Economy in steam-raising, by R. Wigginton; The Elimination of explosives in coal-mines by the use of sulphur dioxide, by J. A. S. Ritson and J. Crossland; Notes on cleat in the Scottish Coalfield, by Prof. R. W. Dron; Coal-cutting by machinery and conveyors in Scottish mines, by G. L. Kerr; Presidential address, by Arthur M. Hedley; Rescue work in cases of falls of roof, by H. T. Foster; A System of mechanical coal-mining, combined with the adoption of systematic timbering, using composite steel props, by J. S. Carson; Experiments on fan-casings and fan-inlets, by H. Briggs and J. N. Williamson; The Conversion of coal into oil by hydrogenation, by J. I. Graham; Presidential address, by J. Cocks; The Rise in temperature of intake air in deep shafts and distant workings (Tenth Report to the Committee on "The Control of Atmospheric Conditions in Hot and Deep Mines") by J. P. Rees; Evidence for an Easterly extension of the Warwickshire Coalfield, by Prof. W. S. Boulton; Mine dust: its sampling and treatment as carried out at the Cannock Chase Colliery, by M. J. Foggo; The New Coal-treatment Laboratory at Birmingham University, by Prof. K. N. Moss.

Vol. 71: Miners' dwelling-houses, by H. E. Mitton; Surveying boreholes by the Briggs "Clinophone" and "Clinoscope," by A. D. Brydon; The Effect of ventilation on the cooling power of the air (Tenth Report of the Committee on "The Control of Atmospheric Conditions in Hot and Deep Mines"), by J. P. Rees; Steam winding engines and accumulators, by H. Pilling; Low-temperature carbonization, by David Brownlie; The Mines (Working Facilities and Support) Act, 1923, part II, by R. F. Percy; Memoir of the late Sir Charles Hilton Seely, Bart., by T. G. Lees; Correlation of the Parkgate Seam: a preliminary study, by Marjorie M. Evans; Machine-mining in bord-and-pillar work, by J. Brass and J. H. Hesketh; Underground tests on the flow of air at Rockingham Colliery (Fourth Report of the Midland Institute Committee on the Ventilation of Mines), by Prof. D. Hay and W. E. Cooke; Coal-conveying, as applied to the Barnsley Bed of South Yorkshire, by B. H. Pickering; The Adjustment of ropes on bi-cylindro-conical drums, by J. Parker; The Problem of in-bye transport, by D. C. Gemmell; Presidential address: Some findings of the Royal Commission on the Coal Industry (1925); Miners' nystagmus, by F. Fergus; Haulage accidents, by P. S. Lea; Winding costs, by S. Burns; Some aspects of the application of electricity to mining, by J. A. B. Horsley; Spontaneous combustion in the Warwickshire Thick Coal, part 1: The application of gas analysis to the detection of heatings, by C. E. Morgan; Notes on a few new American underground cutting, loading, and conveying machines, by R. K. Jeffrey.

Most of the papers included in the above volume are also issued separately as pamphlets.

Transactions of the Institution of Mining Engineers. Vols. 72 and 73 (36s. each), containing papers as follows:—

Vol. 72: A New hygrometer for mines, by W. Hancock; Local air-conditioning underground by means of refrigeration (twelfth report to the Committee on "The Control of atmospheric conditions in hot and deep mines"), by W. Hancock; Machine-mining, with some notes on the control of roof weight, by H. Richford; Electrical installations in mines: maintenance of insulation and automatic protection of circuits, by J. A. B. Horsley; The Chemist in relation to the mining engineer, by N. Simkin; Presidential Address, by G. A. Longden; The Efficiency of a fan, by J. W. Whitaker; The Carbonisation process of the Midland Coal Products, Ltd., Colwick Estates, Nottingham, and its application to collieries, by C. Ingman; Memoir of the late John Alfred Longden, by G. A. Longden; The Lincolnshire coalfield: a record of coal-borings in Lincolnshire, by J. Ford; The Occurrence of gas, by R. Clive; The Haulage of men underground: report of a Committee of the South Yorkshire Coal Trade Association, communicated by R. Clive; Angle and vertical up-boring, by A. Kyle; Thin-seam mining: an example of re-organisation of face and in-bye transport methods, by T. S. Durham; An Old colliery windmill, by J. J. Stout; The Chemical relations of the principal varieties of coal, by Prof. G. Hickling; The Dry separation of small coal, by W. H. and S. R. Berrisford; Presidential Address, by E. P. Turner; Presidential Address, by Laurence Holland; Magnetic meridian observations, by T. G. Bocking.

Vol. 73: Notes on the overhead Koepe winding plant at the Murton Colliery of the South Hetton Coal Co., Ltd., Co. Durham, by G. Raw; The Sutton-Steele-and-Steele process of cleaning dry coal, with some remarks on pneumatic separators, by K. C. Appleyard; Experiments on the reversal of mine ventilation, by W. D. Lloyd and J. N. Williamson; An Attempt at the rationale of faulting and subsidence, by H. Briggs, with an Appendix by J. Morrow; The Driving of narrow places, by S. Walton-Brown; The Composition of the gaseous mixture given off from coal, by J. I. Graham and A. Shaw; The Cleaning of small coal, by A. Robinson; Storage-battery locomotives in mine service, by A. W. Brown; The Carbonisation and combustion of particles of coal: the structure of cenospheres, by F. S. Sinnatt; Experiments on the flow of air in ducts (fifth report of the Midland Institute Committee on the ventilation of mines), by W. E. Cooke and I. C. F. Statham; The Construction of flame safety lamps, by R. V. Wheeler and D. W. Woodhead; The Problem of resuscitation in mines, by D. Davidson; Experiments concerning the relationship between ventilating pressure and air-volume in mines, and the effect of natural ventilation, by H. Briggs, J. N. Williamson, J. S. Penman, and H. Hyde; Miners' nystagmus, by J. S. Haldane and T. L. Llewellyn; An Improved face conveyor, by A. V. Reis; Screening and washing plant at Deaf Hill Colliery, Co. Durham, by L. F. H. Booth; The Economic working of thick seams in New South Wales, by W. Rawling; The Dry cleaning of coal, by J. S. Carson; Notes on the reopening of a working district after spontaneous heating, by T. C. Matnard, with an Addendum by J. I. Graham; Spontaneous combustion in North Staffordshire: Part 1, The Influence of ventilating pressure and barometric change upon the vitiation of the air, by T. D. Jones and J. I. Graham; Note on the composition of oil found in proximity to certain coal-seams of North Staffordshire in relation to its mode of formation, by J. I. Graham and D. G. Skinner; The Influence of barometric changes in promoting spontaneous combustion, by J. I. Graham, C. E. Morgan, and N. C. Eabry; Local air-conditioning underground: efficiencies of small auxiliary ventilating units (thirteenth report to the committee on the control of atmospheric conditions in hot and deep mines), by W. Hancock.

Most of the papers included in the above volumes are also issued separately as pamphlets.

Transactions of the Institution of Mining Engineers. Vols. 74 and 75 (36s. each), containing papers as follows:—

Vol. 74: Presidential address, by Henry Louis; The Rhéolaveur coal-washer in Belgium, by Henry Briggs and Henry Louis; Demonstrations with a lamp-room photometer, by J. S. Haldane and R. V. Wheeler; Life-saving in colliery explosions and fires, by T. A. Southern; The Measurement of low air-velocities in mines (Fourteenth Report to the Committee on "The Atmospheric conditions in hot and deep mines"), by J. P. Rees; Notes on Indian mining; or, Experiences at an Indian colliery, by G. S. Caldwell, with an addendum by J. Lomax;

A Practical solution of the high-temperature deep-mining problem by natural ventilation, by A. Miller; Presidential Address, by Ernest E. Bramall: The Efficiency of a fan, Part 2: The temperature-difference method: Refinements for accuracy, by J. W. Whitaker; The Application of Conveyors to Longwall mining, by L. J. Barraclough; Presidential Address, by D. H. Currer Briggs; Some Recent developments in the art of metering air, gas, steam and other industrial fluids, by John L. Hodgson; The Underground transport of the injured, and ambulance organisation in mines, by David Davidson; Presidential Address: Shaft-sinking at Washington, Co. Durham, by Mark Ford; Notes on an inrush of water at the Montagu colliery, Scotswood-on-Tyne, on March 30, 1925, by H. T. Foster; Further modifications of the correlation of the coal-seams of the Northumberland and Durham coalfield, by William Hopkins; Presidential Address: Accidents in mines and progress in mining legislation, by Thomas Boydell; Widening a shaft, by A. R. Latham; Some general considerations of machine-mining practice, by L. J. Barraclough

Vol. 75: Some causes of failure in wire mining ropes, by Cecil H. Desch; Some facts regarding the low-temperature carbonisation of coal, by G. S. Haslam and R. V. Wheeler; The Problem of the safe use of coal-mining explosives, by W. Payman; Alteration in the composition of the air contained in a sealed-off area in the Barnsley bed, by D. Macgregor; Mine-rescue work in the United States, by George S. Rice; Supporting underground roads by steel arches, by D. C. Gemmell; The Design and maintenance of flame-proof electrical enclosures, with special reference to coal-face machinery, by J. A. B. Horsley; An Experience of machine-mining in a highly-inclined seam, by John M. Williamson and John Bilsland; Electric mine lamps and better lighting, by William Maurice; A New gas-measuring miner's electric lamp, by W. M. Thornton; Notes on high candle-power lamps, by H. Staples; Some notes on quarrying by the Well-drill method, by William Cullen; Notes on an explosion of gunpowder, by R. J. Weeks; The Sinking of the Londonderry colliery, Seaham Harbour, Co. Durham, by the freezing process, by J. L. Henrard and J. T. Whetton; Extracts and recommendations from the Report of the Water Dangers Committee, by T. Greenland Davies; The Physical constitution of bituminous coal and coal-seams, by John G. Kellett; The Distribution of ash in bituminous coal-seams, by John G. Kellett; The Recovery operations after an explosion which occurred at the Birchenwood colliery, Kildsgrove, Staffordshire, on December 18, 1925, by J. R. L. Allott; Notes on safety appliances for use in mines, by Samuel Rogers; Five years' experiences with steel arches as roadway supports, by R. Bennett and M. B. Gardner; Description of the Bullhurst seam and the methods of working the same at the Rookery Colliery of the Bignall Hill Colliery Company, Limited, having regard to its liability to spontaneous combustion, by John Cowcill; Whitewash and its application to underground roadways, by Albert Marshall; Methods of working highly-inclined seams outlined as a basis for a discussion on their limitations and possibilities, by J. R. L. Allott; Memoir of the late Alexander Smith, by W. F. Clark and L. Holland; The Dry-cleaning of coal, by A. N. Harrison Slade; Spontaneous combustion in the Warwickshire thick coal, Part 2: Symptoms accompanying the progressive development of heatings and

Vol. 76: Atmospheric conditions in Indian coal mines (15th Report to the Committee on "The Control of Atmospheric Conditions in Hot and Deep Mines"), by D. Penman; The Light given by various types of miners' lamps, by C. C. Reid and A. V. Reis; The Sizing of coal for briquetting, by J. R. Homer; Pillar-and-stall working under a sandstone roof, by O. T. Jones and E. L. Davies; German mining and its organization, by H. O. Dixon; The Manufacture of electric detonators, by T. C. Futers; Presidential address, by P. Muschamp; Practical applications of intensive mining, by N. J. Muschamp; Some notes on a visit to Germany, by J. R. Felton; The Ringrose firedamp indicator, by J. Crossland; The Testing of a Steart fan at Grange Colliery, S. Yorkshire, by G. Lindley and D. Hay; Assessing the value of coking coals, by G. W. J. Bradley and R. A. Mott; Flame-proof electrical apparatus: the release of pressure from flameproof enclosures, and some features of the design of such enclosures, by I. C. F. Statham; Impressions of German coal-mining, by D. C. Gemmell and J. Heron; Tru-lay wire ropes and Tru-loc fittings, by A. T. Adam; Notes on the conversion of main pumping from steam to electricity, with special reference to the plant installed at the Clara Vale Colliery of the Stella Coal Company, Ltd., Co. Durham, by L. H. Forster; Roof control on longwall faces, by J. F. C. Friend; An Account of the approach and dewatering of a waterlogged area in folded ground at the Podmore Hall Collieries, N. Staffordshire, by G. W. Poole; Co-ordination of mining surveys with the Ordnance Survey, by Maj. D. A. Hutchison; Presidential address, by C. F. Jackson; The Southern extension of the Warwickshire Coalfield, by F. W. Shotton

Vol. 77: The Salts lost by sweating owing to high air-temperatures (16th Report to the Committee on "The Control of Atmospheric Conditions in Hot and Deep Mines"), by W. Hancock, A. G. R. Whitehouse and J. S. Haldane; Work of the Committee of the Institution of Mining Engineers on the Control of Atmospheric Conditions in Hot and Deep Mines, by J. S. Haldane; Notes on the water dangers question in relation to the abandonment of mines in the Wrexham Area, by H. P. Harris; The Drainage of old workings at Pinxton Colliery, Nottingham, by P. F. Day; Memoir of the late John Thomas Todd; Industrial gas-masks, by S. H. Katz; Explosibility of atmospheres behind stoppings, by H. F. Coward; Some observations on miners' nystagmus, by W. J. W. Ferguson; The Resistance to flow of air at bends and in straight airways (6th Report of the Midland Institute Committee on the Ventilation of Mines), by W. E. Cooke and I. C. F. Statham; Electro-magnetic testing of wire ropes, by T. F. Wall; A Note on the mineralogy of coal, as suggested by X-ray examination, by H. Briggs, with an intro. by C. N. Kemp; The Appearance of coals, oil-shales, and other mineral substances in ultra-violet rays, by H. Briggs; Presidential address, by M. Brand; Recent progress in underground conveying, by S. Mavor; Land drainage,

Transactions of the Institution of Mining Engineers, Vol 78 and 79, 36s. ea., containing papers as follows :—

Vol. 78: Presidential address, by H. Eustace Mitton; Abstract of the "Report of an investigation of the underground conveying and loading of coal by mechanical means," by R. Clive; Pulverized fuel, with particular reference to colliery plant, by A. N. Harrison Slade; The Prevention of fires in mines and methods of dealing with them, by D. Coatesworth; Recent developments in the treatment of fine coal, by A. Grounds; Presidential address, by T. A. Lawton; The Operation of a small-coal washery, by C. E. Pulford; Some recent investigations into the coal measures of Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire, by S. G. Clift; A Description of two methods of timbering a coal-cut conveyor face, by J. Stachan; Presidential address, by Prof. R. V. Wheeler; Some points on colliery blasting practice, by J. E. Lambert; The Lochaber water-power scheme and its geological aspect, by B. N. Peach; Presidential address, by R. S. Anderson; The Distribution and sequence of the non-marine lamellibranchs in the coal-measures of Northumberland and Durham, by W. Hopkins; Notes and suggestions on the underground transport of workmen, by J. A. Bloor; Presidential address, by A. Marshall; Subsidence caused by coal-mining, by T. A. O'Donahue; Spontaneous combustion in the Warwickshire thick coal: Part III, Underground working conditions responsible for the occurrence of heatings, by C. E. Morgan.

Vol. 79: The Introduction of machine-mining at Newdigate Colliery, by D. S. Newey; A Comparison from the standpoint of economics and of practical working between compressed air and electricity for use in collieries, by D. Hay and N. E. Webster; The Occurrence and estimation of lead and zinc compounds in coal, by K. Neville Moss, A. A. Hirst, and L. W. Needham; The Application of briquetting to the production of domestic fuel, by J. R. Homer; The Cleaning of coal: an experimental determination of the fundamental principles of pneumatic and wet separation, by A. A. Hirst; The Settling of fine coal in water, with special reference to the clarification of washing water, by L. W. Needham; Boulders from coal-seams in the Lancashire Coalfield, by M. B. Hodge; Presidential address: The Unwatering, sinking and cementation of the Lyme Pits, Haydock, Lancashire, by J. Gardiner; The Application of geophysics to mining, with special reference to the location of faults, by Capt. H. Shaw; Notes on the design, construction and operation of a modern coke-oven and by-product recovery plant equipped for the manufacture of town's gas, by D. V. Hollingworth; Some problems of dust collection, by J. W. Gibson; Scraper loading, by D. Hay and N. E. Webster; Memoir of the late William Henry Chambers, by A. T. Thomson; Some modern ideas on coal, by F. V. Tidswell; Miners' nystagmus and mine lighting, by Dr. W. J. W. Ferguson; Control of Roof and Support of Mine Workings Ctte. of the Midland Inst. of Mining Engineers: First Progress report: The Beeston seam of West Yorkshire; Low-temperature carbonization, by W. J. Skilling; The Use of iron and steel for underground supports, by J. S. Carson; The Detection of inflammable gases and vapours, by C. McLuckie; Notes on a winding accident at Mainsforth Colliery, Co. Durham, Dec. 31st, 1928, by C. Howson; The Value of the economizer in present-day boiler installations, by G. E. Tansley; The Pitman's yearly bond, by H. Louis; The Surveying of boreholes, by J. T. Whetton; The Gaseous products resulting from fires and underground heatings, by J. I. Graham; The Influence of variation in the resiliency factors on the dry separation of coal and shale, by S. R. Berrisford; The Yield of Coal-seams, by T. G. Bocking and C. H. Bailey; Notes on some experiments in coal-face lighting from power mains, by J. C. Mitcheson.

A LIST OF PUBLISHERS

This list of Publishers, with their Addresses, has been compiled principally for the purpose of supplying information regarding the books in the English Catalogue. This will explain the inclusion of some firms in the list who can scarcely, in the strict acceptation of the term, be called Publishers, since the publication of books forms only an occasional part of their business.

The Editor will be glad to be notified of any inaccuracy in the following lists for correction in subsequent volumes.
